The Wheat Pool Will Not Make the Same Mistakes Twice.

"What do you think of the Wheat Pool now?" is a question often put to the writer, says The Canadian Co-operator. "Just about what I have always thought of it," has been the reply. The wheat pool may or may not have made similar mistakes to the Canadian private grain trade on the questions of market policy, but it is one of the victims and not the cause of the breakdown of the economic structure of the world.

What we, as co-operators, are more concerned about is that if the wheat pool has made mistakes it will realise them, and will not make the same mistakes twice. A man who does not make a mistake does not make anything worth while. The early development of the British Movement was accompanied by many experimental mistakes. With all their accumulated experience, British co-operators still make mistakes, but they have to be very big before they can be felt, owing to the immensity of their success and resources.

The 100 Per Cent Pool.

The Alberta wheat pool will conduct a referendum on the question of one hundred per cent Pool next summer when the annual election of delegates is being held, according to information received from the Publicity Dept. of the Alberta wheat pool, Calgary, Alberta. A ballot will be sent to each member on which the following question will be asked: "Are you in favor of an 100 per cent pool by legislation?"

The Ladies' Hockey Team

Hockey has taken such a hold locally, this winter, that we now have a team for every day in the week. One of these teams which has not advertised itself so much as the others is the young ladies' team. This aggregation has been on the ice since the season began, and has produced a few star players who don't need to take any back-chat from the male variety of hockeyists roaming hereabouts. Their captain has under consideration several challenges to play, received from similar outfits in the City.

Radio Interference.

Following a complaint made several months ago, by petition, of local owners of receiving sets of interference; and to which no apparent remedy had been applied, two or three of the radio dealers have been making an effort to locate the sources of this interference to local reception, and have already spotted a few of these noise makers. The radio inspector will be invited to come out to Stony, with his simple little device which effectively quells disturbances when attached to their source.

Henry Ford Has a New Idea.

Those with somewhat higher incomes are keenly interested in such indications as have come to their knowledge that Ford is working on a light eight cylinder car to sell below $1000. If this car is actually put on the market, Ford could lower the price of his present product thru the development of a new car, and thus embrace a larger customer group. This development would also stir up the now weary competition the automobile industry has ever known. - Roger W. Babson, in the Edmonton Journal, of Jan. 31.

How To Look Fat and Get That Youthful Feeling

Over in Great Britain where a skin is being "soaked in a bath" and looking like "pumpkin of health" they say:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FEBRUARY 2

THESE ARE THE WORDS OF THE LORD

Golden Text: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."—Luke 6:31.

Lesson: Luke 6.
Devotional Reading: Proverbs 2:12-18.

Explanations and Comments

The Law Of Love, verses 27-31. — But I say unto you that hear: here Jesus turns from the worldlings upon whom He has been pronouncing His woes, to His followers, and counsels them to be ruled by love in their treatment of their enemies. The Greek word for "love" in our text is carefully chosen. It is not demanded that we should love our enemies with a natural and spontaneous affection ("phileo"), but with a supernatural Christian love that comes by grace ("agapan"). At the time when Jesus uttered these words, revenged weakness upon an enemy was considered noble. How Cicero gloated over the misfortunes of an enemy; he thought himself fortunate on his death bed that he could say that no one had done more good to his friends nor more mischief to his enemies!

The Goodness Expected Of Christ's Followers, verses 31-35a. If you love them that love you, if you do good to them that do good to you, what kind of thanks have you, what kind of reward do you deserve? For even sinners love those who love them. Love given for love is only glorified selfishness. Show your love by unselfishness, by loving your enemies as well as your friends; by doing good to those who do evil to you as well as to those who treat you well; by lending to those from whom nothing will be received as well as to those who will return the favor. And the great argument is the favor. And the great argument is the favor. And the great argument is the favor. And the great argument is the favor.

Kindness and Mercifulness, 35b, 36. — Do all things—love your enemies, do them good, and lend, never despairing—and your reward shall be great—ye shall be sons of God, for He is kind toward the unthankful and evil. Be merciful even as your Father is merciful.

"It is an attribute of God Himself. And earthly power doth then show likest God's."

When mercy seasons justice."

—Shakespeare.

Be Charitable In Judgment and Generous In Giving, verses 37, 38. — Judge not, and ye shall not be judged; and condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned; release, set free, a debtor or offender, and ye shall be released. These are general statements which are not to be taken without qualification. The example of Jesus Himself shows when judging and condemning is a duty. Read Matthew 18:15; 2 Tim. 4:2. Apply the Golden Rule, and judge others as you would that others should judge you.

"An otherwise beautiful character is often made almost repulsive by the single bad habit of censoriousness. It is one of the temptations of the good to indulge in harsh judgment of the faults of others. Cultivating a stern conscience merely for the sake of denouncing goodness is no more Christianlike, and no more heart-enriching and satisfying, than giving to make a display with money."

Make Some Hot Biscuits Today!

Make a dozen delicious biscuits this way. Mix together twice, 2 cups Purify Flour, 2 eggs, baking powder, 1 tsp. salt. MAJORITY FOR LABOR ON TRADES DISPUTES BILL

London, England.—In a packed and excited House of Commons the government got through the second reading of the Trades Disputes Bill by a majority of 37.

The government majority was larger even than had been expected. Only seven other Liberals voted with the John Simon in opposition to the bill and with the Conservative opposition. One Liberal supported the bill by his vote; the rest abstained from recording their opinion.

As soon as the result of this vote was announced, Mr. Simon, Stanley Baldwin, Conservative chief, moved that the bill be referred to a committee of the whole House.

Again the House divided. This time, however, the majority of the Liberals voted with the government, and the MacDonald majority rose to 62. The net result is—in the parlance of Westminster—that the bill will go "upstairs" for committee consideration clause by clause. The committee stage will be passed in a standing committee instead of the committee of the whole where the possibility of a government defeat on a matter of detail is always present.

The final day's debate on the bill opened in breezy style with Mr. Winston Churchill on his feet. It rumbled along with the contributions of back-benchers during the dinner period and ended magnificently with Mr. J. H. Thomas, the secretary of state for the Dominions.

Mr. Churchill described the trades unions as pampered pets leaping with privileges under the new bill. The Laborites continually interrupted Mr. Churchill with ironical cheers.

"Why," Mr. Churchill asked, in reference to Laborites, "why should a patriotic Conservative trades unionist have to subscribe to the political fund of the cosmopolitan socialist? Why should a Catholic have to subscribe to a fund, perhaps, of an Agnostic or an Atheist?"

These words brought a "Labor storm."

"Filthy argument," said Laborites shouted.

Mr. Churchill spoke of the Liberal decision not to vote as an outrage of the first order.

"What," Mr. Churchill asked, "has become of the Liberal traditions?"

Here a Laborite interrupted, pointing at Mr. Churchill, said: "He's not a tradition; he's an extradition," and a roar of laughter went up from the House.

The Liberals had compromised on the bill, Mr. Churchill added, they might not dislike it much in the House of Commons, but they were going to hate it like poison "upstairs." Mr. Churchill finished by comparing Prime Minister MacDonald with the "senseless wonder" of a circus.

London, England.—Mr. Hon. Arthur Henderson, secretary of foreign affairs, informed a questioner in House of Commons that he was not aware of any negotiations looking to the establishment of Russian trade delegations in any of the Dominions.

Need For Early Session

Mr. Hon. Mackenzie King Speaks At Westminster

Ottawa, Ont.—With the declaration that in some parts of Canada today the distress is greater than it has ever been, Mr. Hon. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition, has issued a statement calling upon the prime minister to shed some light on when parliament will meet. Notwithstanding that the government has had a free hand with its policies and expenditures, "conditions in Canada today are much worse than they were at the time of the calling of the special session in September last," asserts Mr. King.

"There is, at present, much more need for the regular annual session of parliament to consider the conditions of the country's affairs than there was for any special session in September," added the Opposition leader.

Mr. King remarks that "the pretext that the reassembling of parliament should wait over until the arrival in Canada of the new Governor-General cannot be taken seriously." He comments on the fact that Premier R. B. Bennett is going to Washington, and expresses the hope that "before the prime minister embarks upon further misadventures which take him away from Canada, he will at least let the country know when it may expect the reassembling of its parliament."

No Acreage Cut

Says Manitoba Farmers Will Trust To A Turn In The Wheel Of Fortune

Winnipeg, Man.—Manitoba farmers will "trust to a turn in the wheel of L. R. Griffiths, member for Russell, fortune" next spring at seeding time, declared in the legislature as he moved adoption of the Speech from the Throne, delivered by the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. J. D. MacGregor. Farmers were uncertain, Mr. Griffiths asserted, and he doubted if money would reduce their grain acreage to any extent.

Michael A. Hryhorczuk, Liberal member for Kildonan, seconded the speech-adoption motion, and debate was adjourned by Lieut.-Col. F. G. Taylor, Conservative leader.

Mr. Griffiths believed farmers who accepted the statement of Conservatives in the last Dominion election that Canada's economic depression was due to the Mackenzie King government, had learned the fallacy of those assertions. Farm product prices had crashed since election day, he said, and unemployment had increased.

With reference to the Conservative demands for an election, Mr. Hryhorczuk doubted if the people of Manitoba were prepared to change their government. But they did want co-operation of all parties, he insisted.

Precedence Given To High Commissioners

King Gives Order As To Rank On Ceremonial Occasions

London, England.—Office of the secretary of state for the Dominions announces that His Majesty has directed that the high commissioners of the Dominions in London and also the high commissioner for India will rank immediately after the British secretaries of state on all ceremonial occasions other than those when ministers of the crown are present from the Dominions.

This announcement implements the decision reached at the Imperial Conference regarding the precedence to be accorded to the high commissioners.

Position of the Dominion's representative, in relation to a minister of the crown visiting the United Kingdom from the Dominion remains unchanged, the minister being given precedence immediately before the high commissioner concerned.

Growth In Gov't Employees

Regina, Sask.—An increase of 361 in the number of employees in the various departments of the government over the number employed as at Sept. 3, 1926, is shown in a return to the order of the assembly. Passengers Ordered Deported

Believing On C.P.R. Ship Banned From Landing In Canada

Vancouver, B.C.—Two passengers off the liner "Empress of Russia," which arrived here from the Orient, Captain W. Little and L. Mercer, have been ordered deported by an immigration board of inquiry. Appeals have been lodged in Ottawa against the rulings.

Captain Little was just discharged from the Indian army and was on his way to join relatives in Toronto. Mercer, from Shanghai, an engineer of the steamer "Hedwig," which was wrecked a few months ago off China, said he intended to settle in Canada.

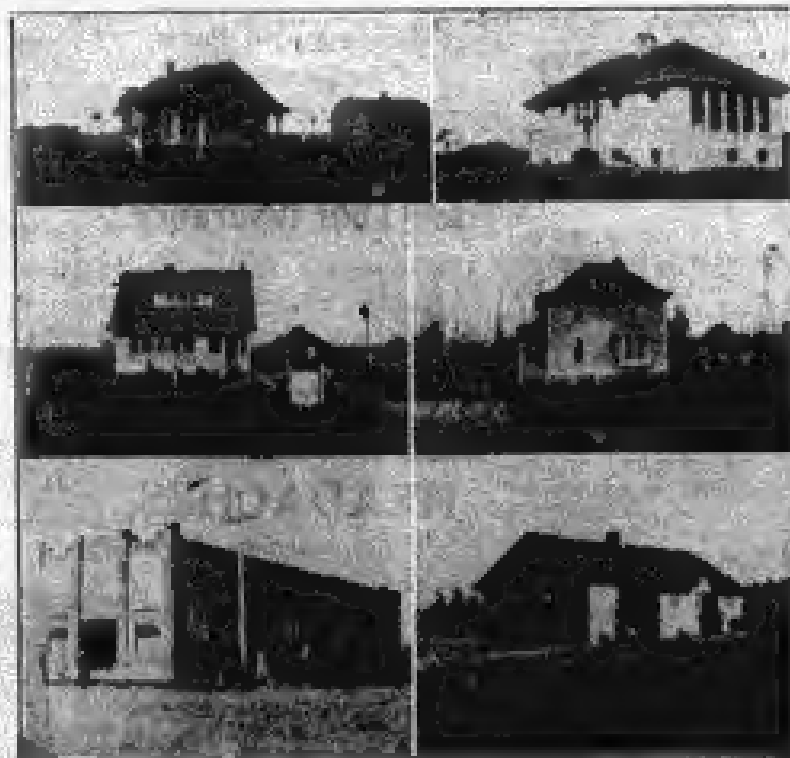

The deportations were ordered under the government regulation which bars all but practical farmers and wives of bona-fide Canadian residents from entering the country.

Manitoba Seed Fair

Will Be Held In Conjunction With Winter Fair On March 16

Brandon, Man.—Judging by early inquiries, the provincial seed fair to be held in conjunction with the Manitoba Winter Fair, March 16 to 20, will be larger than ever. Now in its seventh year, the seed fair has grown by leaps and bounds and it cramped the generous show space in the arena building last year. As the fair is an opportunity for growers of surplus grain, grass or clover seeds to get in touch with prospective purchasers, the exhibition is expected to have more than its usual interest in March.

Chain Commander Was Drunk

Over 40 Canadian Vessel, Tugboat Against United States Officer

New York.—News from the Nova Scotia power boat "Josephine K." appeared before the consular board of inquiry to testify that Boatmaster Earl Schmidt of the "CG-148" was drunk when he boarded the Canadian vessel after its capture near Amherst Light. Schmidt, who had admitted he fired the shots, one of which fatally injured the boat's master, William Chert, Lunenburg, N.S., was in court and heard witnesses swear that after the capture he continued drinking in the forecabin of the run-runner.

Louis Selig, who described himself as an able seaman from Halifax, N.S., gave the main testimony for members of the crew. Schmidt, he said, seemed "good and drunk" when he saw him shortly after the "Josephine K." was boarded. The boatmaster had pointed a gun at Allan Falkenberg, Lunenburg, and maintained he would have to shoot because Falkenberg's name did not appear on the ship's crew list. Schmidt, he said, staggered, his face was red and his eyes "glaring." The commander of the "CG-148" stayed in the forecabin several hours, and while there consumed six bottles of ale and two drinks of rye whiskey, during which time all members of the "Josephine K." crew had an opportunity to witness his condition.

Seaman Allan Falkenberg said he thought Schmidt drunk, that he waved a gun and told him he would shoot him if he didn't belong to the ship. Harry Jewell said: "He was falling all over himself, and rolling around."

Ready Canadian Flying Club

Manager Of Royal Bank At Port William Elected President

Montreal, Que.—H. R. Richards, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in Port William, Ont., was elected president of the Canadian Flying Club Association at the close of the annual convention here. He succeeds J. A. Bully, of Winnipeg. Other officers were elected as follows: Vice-president for the Maritime provinces; R. J. R. Nelson, manager of the Halifax Shipyard, Halifax, N.S.; vice-president representing Ontario and Quebec, A. Sidney Dwyer, Montreal; vice-president, representing the western provinces, James A. Bell, president of the Edmonton Flying Club, Edmonton, Alta.; treasurer, H. P. Crabb, Winnipeg, president of the Winnipeg Flying Club.

All meetings of the association were held in camera, and no public announcements were made at the close, beyond the list of officers.

TEST SHIPMENTS OF GRAIN FROM PORT CHURCHILL

Ottawa, Ont.—Test movement of two or possibly three cargoes of grain, about 700,000 bushels, will be shipped through the port of Churchill the middle of next September, according to present plans. A conference held here with representatives of shipping interests indicated that there will be no difficulty getting private steamship companies to undertake the movement. A statement issued on the conference by the Department of Railways and Canals, follows:

"Arrangements for the proposed test movement of grain from the port of Churchill, on Hudson Bay, were under consideration at a conference held in the office of the minister of railways and canals. The meeting was arranged at the instance of the minister, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, who is taking a warm personal interest in the whole undertaking, and was attended by the principal officers of his department and by representatives of Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and Canadian National Steamships.

"Dr. Manion was assured by his officers that from present indications the port facilities would be sufficiently advanced to admit of the test movement by about the middle of September, the date by which the construction of the wharves have agreed to have them complete. The movement will dislocate to a certain extent the dredging and dock extension program for the present season, and for that reason will probably be restricted to the shipment of two or possibly three, cargoes of grain approximating about three-quarters of a million bushels.

"The shipping trade is greatly depressed at present, and from inquiries already received, vessel owners are evincing considerable interest in the possibilities of the Hudson Bay route. No great difficulty, therefore, is anticipated in interesting private vessel owners in the business that the test movement will afford and considerable prestige may be expected to accrue to the steamship company having the honor of handling this first commercial movement of grain out of Western Canada's new port.

"It is too early as yet to speak definitely as to either freight or insurance rates, but arrangements are being made to see that that aspect of the situation is thoroughly canvassed, and at the proper time the minister expects to be in a position to meet any eventuality which may develop. Meanwhile, both he and the officials of the department feel that there is no question but that it will be possible to demonstrate, this coming fall, that the facilities of the port will be available and capable of taking care of the business which will be attracted to the port on the inauguration of the route at the opening of the 1927 season of navigation."

Asking Lower Freight Rates

B.C. Government Will Back Growers and Farmers in Fight

Victoria, B.C.—The government will get behind British Columbia growers and farmers in their fight for lower freight rates to the prairies. Premier S. F. Tolmie has instructed Leon J. Lander, B.C. government solicitor, to co-operate with the growers and farmers in commencing proceedings before the railway commission immediately.

Vegetable growers of British Columbia, backed by the farming industry, appealed to the government in strong terms recently to rescue them from a threatened reduction in growing average by about 25 per cent. This year, by an immediate reduction in freight rates from here to prairie markets.

To this end a large delegation composed of the highest in agricultural and life an immediate application with the railway commission for a cut in freight rates to the level of those prevailing from Ontario to the prairie.

It was reported the government would follow this plan and launch a new rate fight without delay.

"Close the door, Julie. There's a draught through here and it's going to rain. What time do you expect Mrs. Halliday? I suppose she wanted you tonight because of her company. Will they be here to supper?"

"Who? Mrs. Halliday isn't got no company. She and Nick" (Julie, who had cleaned house for everyone in Bakersville since Nick was a little boy, wouldn't have deigned to say "Mr. Hastings"). "Started noon as they eat breakfast. Mr. Halliday's away. Not come back till tomorrow. He's busy in his sea."

Gay sat down rather weakly on the stairs.

"I know, but I thought she had company. I supposed that was why she didn't go to the funeral."

"You supposed wrong then. I heard her tell Mr. Halliday that, when his sea had never liked her, she didn't see no reason why she should go. I felt kind o' sorry for him, because 'twas plain he was feelin' bad. He said: 'Angela, I'd like you to go with me. What will Mary think?' Mary's his sister—an invalid, she can't walk; but just then they see me in the next room and stopped talkin'."

Gay sat very still on the stairs. Her knees felt as though they wouldn't hold her up.

"Perhaps," she suggested, "perhaps they were to pick up her friends at the station."

But Julie's answer dashed this hope.

"No, they went in the small car, not the new one. Besides, Mr. Halliday put up the lunch, and she only put up enough for two; stuffed eggs, cold chicken, salad sandwiches (every one in a separate piece o' paper and the crusts sliced off), spice cake, and—"

A flash of lightning and terrific crash of thunder interrupted. Little Nick always nervous at any sudden noise, cried out, and even Sony, who had been taught not to mind the storms, scuttled close to his mother's skirts like a frightened chick.

"Get!" said Julie. "Get! I come over when I did say. Let's get out o' this dark hole. I'll turn on a light in the other room."

Gay arose, her knees still strongly weak, and lifted her baby.

"Sony, dear little boy, you go to Julie. There's nothing to be afraid of. Don't you remember what Daddy told you about Rip Van Winkle and the nine-pins? They must be having a splendid game today—Rip and the little brown men."

"I wish Daddy'd been," said the boy wistfully. "I wish he'd been."

Tears sprang to Gay's eyes.

"Maybe he'll come home, darling," she comforted; but Julie, with characteristic tactlessness observed:

"And meet likely he won't. They was gona' clear to Moscow's Falls. Them hills is awful. That's why she wanted Nick to go, I guess, though I should think she'd be stayed at home, never that she wouldn't go to her mother-in-law's funeral. Tain't no time to be gadding about Moscow to me. Say! sometimes, Gay, they fight like cats and dogs—her and him."

"You—you ought not to tell me about it, Julie," Gay protested, though her thoughts were far away.

"Well, I ain't no gossip, but things is queer there. I ain't married myself, but I've cleaned house for most every married pair in Bakersville, and I'll tell the world" (Julie, who read the Sunday comics, was nothing if not modern in her slang). "that what I don't know about married folks, ain't worth botherin' to find out. Some of 'em fight, but most of 'em's got a room they call 'our room,' even if it's got two beds in it—stead o' one (and an awful waste o' sheets I call it, too), but the Hallidays—they've got rooms to themselves, and bedrooms besides. (Glory! ain't that lightin' fierce?)"

"She's got the big room that was Selma Smith's spare chamber—and the best bed in fur visitors, only they don't have any. Mr. Halliday has the room next to mine, the one in the ell. It ain't big, but then, he don't do nothin' in it but sleep, though once" (Julie's voice dropped to a mysterious whisper). "once, Gay, and don't you ever tell this or I'd keep my place, I could be sworn he was cryin'! It was late one night, and I swear if he'd been a woman I'd be his last dollar on it. But then, maybe I was mistaken. It might be been a cat. Sometimes cats sound terrible human."

Gay shuddered—not at Julie's pitiful disclosure which she had heard only unconsciously—not at the lightning, which was very near, but at the thought that Nick had possibly deceived her. Then she flushed hotly at her own weakness. How could she even for a minute—given in the light of damning evidence, believe such a thing of Nick? Not to save his soul would he lie to her? There was some mistake. Perhaps she hadn't heard right over the wires. For a moment she clung to this solution of the mystery, only to discard it when she remembered how clear his voice had sounded, and his laugh. But he couldn't have laughed like that had his conscience been guilty. If he had gone with Mrs. Halliday alone, as Julie seemed so positive, there was some reason for it, of course, which he'd explain. What were wives for anyway, if not to trust, wholly and completely? Slowly she came back to the present to hear Julie say:

"There! I do believe the worst of it's over. I'm gona' out and clean up your kitchen. Mr. Halliday's payin' for my time so might as well use it. She don't want me for anything but an ornament to her back porch to-

Results Commendable. Genuine Gratitude.

Miss Miller, of Croydon, writes:—"In gratitude, I feel I must write and tell you what wonderful benefit I have derived from taking a bottle of your Carter's Little Liver Pills. Having been troubled with indigestion and sick headache for several months, a friend recommended me to try your famous pills, with the results that after the first dose I was made aware of their very real tonic value, and felt I had at last discovered a remedy which performed what it claimed to do."

day. How do you like my hair this way, Gay? It's the latest style."

"I—I don't think I've got used to it yet," Gay answered, feeling, in spite of her foreboding thoughts, an apologetic desire to laugh.

"I'm makin' up for a permanent wave," said Julie. "Then it won't look so straggly. That's what Mr. Halliday does to her hair. Say! you'd ought to see the truck on her hair—she spends enough time on 'money' with it! It takes her more'n an hour alone to fix her hair."

"I shouldn't think they'd ever need fixing," said Gay disinterestedly, as she looked down at her own brown locks. Even the month at Uncle Sam's had not entirely obliterated the scars of loss. Nick had once said that her hands were beautiful. They were beautiful no longer—and Mrs. Halliday's were soft and white. Was Nick, perhaps, looking at them now, clasped lightly in her lap, and thinking—comparing—

"Now, Sony," Julie was saying briskly as she looked from the window, "that storm's most over. I'm gona' to help your ma, and you just stand here by the window, and if you see your pa and Mr. Halliday side up, you run an' tell me an' I'll come home and let 'em in the front door."

"Oh, Julie," said Gay uneasily. "I mustn't let you use Mrs. Halliday's time to do my work."

"Now look her," said Julie sanely, facing Gay with a hand on either hip. "A fair exchange ain't no robbery. If Nick was home he'd be helpin' you clean up and unpack, or he'd changed some from the boy his Aunt Nettie trained up. And if he's driver Mr. Halliday's car for her, it won't hurt nobody for me to sweep the dust out o' your kitchen. Men folk is terrible careless housekeepers—the best of 'em. Now you run along and make the beds, and Sunday or so Sunday, I'll slick up down here. Mr. Halliday won't ever know a thing about it—not from me anyway."

The lightning had almost ceased, but it still rained heavily, and the house was dark. Gay glanced at the clock. It was nearly ten, and her baby nodded.

"I'll give him some milk and put him to bed now, Julie," she said, "and by the time he's off 'tweeny' he'll be ready for the night. You're good to help me, but—I'd hate to leave Mrs. Halliday and you here."

"She won't find me," Julie was removing her cuffs and turning back her skirt. "I declare, this ain't no costume for cleanin', but it's not o' nothin', don't you think, Gay? I—"

"Then hurry!" called Sony from his wash tub.

Julie and Gay both turned to the window to see a tall stepping before the house next door.

"Glory!" came breathlessly from Julie. "It's him! She didn't expect him till tomorrow. I got to run. What'll he think when I tell him she's been off all day with another fellow? Sorry I can't stay, Gay; but likely he'll want some supper. If the storm gets worse again I'll not come, I—"

Julie was still talking as she ran and the door and through the gap in the hedge. Gay, watching in a petrified silence, saw Mrs. Halliday take out a latch key and open his front door. Suddenly she noticed the lonely homecoming after his and around—the remembered Julie's disclosure of those words in the night that "might have been a cat," and now, to come home to find his wife gone.

—planning—gone with another fellow," to Julie put it—gone with Nick—

Little Help For This Week

"In This Night shall we see Light."—Psalm xcvi. 1.

We older children grope our way From dark behind to dark before; And only when our hands we lay Dear Lord, in Thine, the night is day. And there is darkness everywhere.

Reach downward to the unseen days, Wherein our guides are blind as we, And faith in small and hope delays; Take Thou the hands of prayer we raise.

And let us feel the light of Thee. —John Greenleaf Whittier.

A man who looks toward the light sees no shadow; a man who walks toward the light leaves darkness behind him. People get in darkness by turning away from the light. They hide in obscure corners; they bury themselves in night, where the Sun of Righteousness cannot reach them; they close their minds and shutters, and wonder that they have no light. A house may be dark, but it is not the fault of the sun. A soul may be dark, but it is not because the Light of the World does not shed beams abroad. —Armstrong.

Constipated Children

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it positively cannot thrive. To keep the little one well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take and can be given to the new-born babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

for ANY CHILD

WE can never be sure just what makes a child restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as your child has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly. If it doesn't, you should call a physician.

After many months of travel through the numerous base post offices in war-torn France and Flanders, the parcel eventually was returned to W. Cameron, the original sender.
